Pucksters Take Lead In Crow Ball League

Trim Blairmore 4-2 Sunday to Break Leadership Deadlock With Michel; Seaman Hit Home Run.

Coleman Pucksters gave the luckless Blairmore Canucks their ninth straight set-back at the local diamond on Sunday afternoon by defeating them 4-2. In winning Coleman broke their tie with Michel for leadership in the Crow league. Only a small crowd was on hand to witness the game.

Errors played a big part in Blairmore's defeat as no less than seven were made. Pucksters made three errors.

In the first inning Pucksters scored twice, aided by two Blairmore errors. In the second the locals filled the bases again, aided by their opposition's errors, with no one out. Draper struck out one man and then forced Sanderson to hit into a double play to retire the side. Pucksters scored one run in the third and one more, a home run by Eddie Seaman, in the sixth.

Blairmore started to hit Molineau's throws in the fourth and scored a run. They continued to get hits in each inning up to the eighth, when Molineau was taken out in favor of Elek. Blairmore scored their last run in the seventh inning. Elek allowed one hit in the last two frames to win out 4-2.

Batteries: Draper and Kubie; Molineau, Elek and Sanderson.

Geo. Pattinson Offers Pair Of Spikes To Best Batsman

Local Ball Team Members Now Fighting It Out for Batting Honors; League Games Only to Count.

George Pattinson has given the local ball players an incentive to go into each game to give the best of their ability. He has offered a pair of spikes to the man on the local team having the best batting average in all league games since July 15. On Sunday last every member of the team tried his best to get as many hits as possible.

On Monday playing against Blairmore with a scrub team, the majority of the local players being on afternoon shift, Pucksters held the Blairmore nine to a 10-1 tie. Again the locals were out to make as many hits as possible.

Here is how they stand after two games:

Children Are Destroying Plants In Cemetery

Police Investigating; Flowers Taken From One Grave and Placed on Another; Vases Piled Up on Individual Graves.

Certain persons having their loved ones buried in the local cemetery are angry at the uncalled for behaviour of a number of young boys and girls who have willfully damaged the graves.

On Monday evening a party went to the cemetery to water the plants and care for their plots. They found plants had been cut and taken away. Investigation showed that other plants had either been cut or ripped up and placed on other graves. One grave was said to have a number of vases piled on it, while others were vaseless. Again on Tuesday evening damage was found to have been done on other graves.

Constable John Nikituk in a statement made Wednesday morning, said he had secured the name of one party who might know something about the damage and who may have names of the persons responsible. He declared emphatically that when the guilty persons were apprehended they would certainly be brought into police court.

It was only last week that a fence was knocked down allowing cattle and horses to roam at large over the graves. This was rectified; now irresponsible children who should have more sense are giving trouble. Persons who have seen children in the cemetery should give the names to police and so aid them in their work to track the guilty parties. No complaint has been received from the Catholic cemetery.

Evelyn Carmello Died On Monday At Calgary

Had Been Ill Four Months; Died In Holy Cross Hospital; Born at Beaver Mines.

Sympathy of a large circle of friends and neighbors was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Nick Carmello on Monday evening when it became known that their second daughter, Evelyn, aged 20, had passed away at Holy Cross hospital, Calgary.

Deceased had been ailing for the past four months and had been a patient in the Miners' hospital since April. A week ago she was taken there. Mr. Carmello went to Calgary Monday evening to bring back the body on Wednesday morning's train. Deceased was born at Beaver Mines and came to Coleman with her parents, where she attended the local schools. She was widely known throughout the community and her many young friends were shocked to hear of her untimely passing. She is survived by her parents and four sisters.

New Gas And Oil Regulations Now In Effect

Motorists State They Will Have to Gas Up Within Legal Hours for Night and Saturday Driving.

The new gas and oil regulations as issued from Ottawa went into effect this week. Gas and oil can only be sold from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on week days and Saturdays. No fuel can be sold on Sundays. Another clause in the regulations is the fact that gas and oil must be on a cash basis.

Garage employees' working hours will of necessity be arranged so that they will cease work at 7 p.m. Coleman has a bylaw in effect which prohibits mechanical repairs after 6 p.m.

It is proposed to call a meeting of garage and service station proprietors to determine what the majority intend doing after 7 p.m.

The average motorist does not seem to be taking the new regulations too badly. Those approached on Monday stated that they would gas up before seven each evening if they wished to go anywhere that evening, and were they going a considerable distance on Sundays they would take the precaution of having extra gallons in this to tide them over the trip. The one cent gas tax increase failed to come in for mention.

Bus From Coleman to Playground Suggested

Would Service Coleman and Blairmore; Pool Has Instructor; Parents Feel Safer Having Children Under Competent Supervisor.

A suggestion was made this week that efforts be made to have a bus transport the kiddies of Coleman and Blairmore daily to the Turtle Mountain Playgrounds where they would enjoy an afternoon's swimming.

It was pointed out that the playground has a swimming instructor and parents knowing that the children were under proper supervision would support the suggestion and encourage their children to take up this healthful exercise.

While there may be other buses in the Pass the two that come to mind are stationed at Hillcrest. One belongs to Welsh Bros. and the other to Hillcrest Garage. Both buses are engaged in taking Hillcrest miners to Hillcrest-Mohawk Collieries and West Canadian Collieries daily but it is thought that if either party was interested in additional business, buses could be found that would be suitable in transporting the children and yet not conflict with the mine runs. Hours of 1 to 5 p.m. were suggested. This would allow the buses to get the men from work to their homes and leave the buses free to take home the children. Cost of fares back and forth to the playground would have to be determined by the number of children using the bus.

Mrs. J.O.C. McDonald Passed Away on Wednesday Afternoon

Funeral Saturday at 2.30 p.m. Rev. H. J. Bevan to Conduct Services.

The sudden death occurred Wednesday afternoon of Mrs. Sadie Catherine McDonald, wife of Mr. J. O. C. McDonald, at her home in Carbondale.

Born at Thorburn, Nova Scotia, in 1883, she was married in 1904 to Mr. McDonald and came to Alberta two years later. Surviving besides her husband are two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Whittaker, of Fernie, and Mrs. T. L. Cairns, of Rochester, and a son John.

The funeral will be held on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. A brief service will be held at the family residence thence to St. Paul's United church where a service will be held. Rev. H. J. Bevan will conduct the services. Interment will be made in Coleman Union cemetery.

Recent rains in Alberta, although of immense benefit to agriculture, brought a slight headache to members of the public works department. Damage costing $200,000 to repair was suffered over provincial roads, and funds to cover this have been raised by special warrant. This is in addition to the $774,000 vote passed by the Legislature. Repairs will be made between Lavo and Innisfree, West of Grande Prairie, and between Hardisty and Hughenden.

Merchants And Children Donate to Red Cross

Patches For Quilts Still Required; Accounts Paid; Pythian Sisters Give Donation.

A regular meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross was held in the council chamber on Monday evening, President W. Dutil being in the chair.

A $100.00 donation was received from the Canadian Red Cross. A $100.00 donation had been received earlier from the L.O.B.A. Both donations have been acknowledged.

A letter was received from the Coleman Caledonian Society stating Mrs. J. Kinney, sr., would represent the society at the Red Cross for the ensuing year.

Accounts amounting to approximately $100 were authorized paid. Patches for quilts are still needed. Twenty-three quilts are at present being made by Red Cross workers. More workers at the work room on Tuesday afternoons in the council chamber are appreciated by the work committee.

Appreciation was expressed for the magnificent parcels recently donated to the association by the Nicholas, Abousaffy and Webster stores. These parcels contain a great deal of clothing which in turn saves many hours of work on the part of the Red Cross workers and which adds to the credit of the local branch.

Students of grade 1, 2, and 3 in Cameron school were also commended for their numerous parcels to the Red Cross. These youngsters have on many occasions bought material with their own money, done the work in making children's comforts and donated their goods to the local association.

Another shipment was sent to provincial headquarters last Friday. It included two baby layettes, articles in each. Another box contained quilts, boys and men's clothing, girls' dresses, dressing gowns, sweaters, socks, and various other articles, amounting to 95 pieces.

The Surplus Wheat Problem

Three totally unrelated items appearing in the daily press within a few days of one another afford an excellent example of the statement that situations and conditions can change so rapidly that they may result in the unanticipated solution of problems which have hitherto appeared insurmountable.

The news items referred to all have or may have actual or potential relationship to the solution of the surplus wheat problem which has in the past year or so so perplexed the governments, farmer organizations, business and the individual farmers of this country.

One of these items is an announcement by Hon. J. G. Gardiner of the possibility that some of the huge surplus of Canadian wheat may be utilized to assist Russia as a result of the unexpected onslaught of Hitler and his hordes upon the U.S.S.R. and particularly on the Ukraine granary of that country. Another is the announcement that the Australian government has devised a plan for the conversion of some of the wheat in that country into 22,000,000 gallons of power alcohol as a substitute for gasoline. The third is an expression of hope by the Dominion cerealist, Dr. L. H. Newman, that bread containing a minimum of 400 international units of B1 per pound in its natural form will appear "sooner or later" on the domestic market.

All three of these items point in the direction towards at least a partial solution of the immediate problem of bursting Canadian wheat storage facilities. One or more of them might go a long way towards the entire solution of the problem.

Many Unknown Contingencies

While the use of Canadian wheat to feed the Russians depends largely upon the course the war will take within the next few weeks or months as well as many other at present unknown factors over which this country has very little control just now; it at least opens the vista of a possibility which should not be disregarded. If and when time and circumstances make such disposition of some of this huge surplus a possibility, and an expedient possibility.

The provision of wheat to the Russians, however, is hedged around by so many unknown contingencies, that little or no reliance can yet be placed upon this possibility as a partial solution of the problem at this date, and it would be the part of wisdom, for the present to concentrate on other measures, and especially those means which would ensure increased domestic consumption of this surplus commodity. Both the Australian plan to provide for conversion of wheat into power alcohol and Dr. Newman's proposal fall within this category.

The economic feasibility of substituting power alcohol derived from wheat, in whole or in part, for gasoline in Western Canada with its apparently large reservoirs of petroleum not yet exhausted is highly doubtful. Investigations and experiments conducted elsewhere have shown this to be the case at the present time. The exigencies of war, however, may make production of alcohol for power purposes from wheat a necessity, no matter what the cost; or, dwindling supply of petroleum and cheapening of the process of turning wheat into power, or a combination of both, may open the door for the economic use of the latter. In any event, it is another possibility which should not be overlooked.

An Economic Feasibility

Dr. Newman's suggestion, however, is one which has the merit of economic feasibility and, insofar as domestic consumption of bread is concerned is one in which the Canadian people have complete control. It is a partial solution to the problem of wheat congestion which should only not be neglected, but one which should be pushed to the limit of its possibility.

Dr. Newman intimated what has been voiced as at least a suspicion in this column before, namely that the life-giving, health conserving vitamin B1 is of greater value for human consumption when furnished in its natural form as found in the wheat germ, than when provided synthetically in the form of chemicals. Moreover, he pointed out, that the 150 international units per 100 pounds provided in some of the commercial flours used by bakeries is not sufficient. The desired objective, he declared, is at least 400 international units per pound.

Th objection to the incorporation of the readily assimilable B1 vitamin as found in the germ of the wheat has been removed by the comparatively recent discovery of a milling process which retains this highly valuable content without producing a flour that will not keep, and it can be done, without additional cost.

If the people knew that they were getting all the B1 they require in its natural and best form in their bread, they would not have to seek it in other and more expensive foods or to purchase it in chemical form and this would result in increased consumption of bread, hence of wheat.

Greater consumption of bread, impregnated with one of the most important necessities of life and health in its best form would also result in all round improved health for the nation as a whole and, as Dr. Newman truly points out, bread would again become the "staff of life." In its highest accepted meaning.

Veteran Journalist

Editor of London Publication Congratulated After 50 Years Service

Winston Churchill is one of the busiest men in the world, and carries almost the heaviest burden of responsibility, but he took time off to attend a luncheon and make a speech in honor of Sir Emsley Carr, on the occasion of his fiftieth anniversary as editor of The News of the World. The King also sent a message of congratulation and good wishes.

Fifty years a editor—and still going strong! It is an amazing record, and yet not the record, for the extraordinary C. P. Scott was editor of The Manchester Guardian for 57 years. But then Scott was in a class by himself, and not only in the matter of professional longevity. He was one of the giants of British journalism, and no one can claim this for Sir Emsley Carr, good man and sound journalist though he is.

That Sir Emsley has made a success of his job is evident, not only from the fact that he has held it so long, but that under his management The News of the World has grown from a circulation of the most modest dimensions to more than three millions—probably the largest weekly circulation in the world.—P. O.D. in Saturday Night.

To Sell Goods

Urges Advertising Be Kept Up To Preserve Buying Habit

Col. Willard Chevalier, of New York publisher of Business Week, told the Toronto Advertising and Sales Club that neglect of advertising during the present emergency will have a disturbing effect on business when the social and economic scheme of things becomes normal again.

Col. Chevalier suggested management of every business operating under a war or defense economy should look beyond existing conditions, and said the buying habit must be retained to offset the period of re-establishment to come.

"Once again it is going to become necessary to go out to the people and interest them in products," he said. "The buying habit will be interfered with soon because certain products will not be available to the public, others will be rationed, still more will be suspended, to a degree."

Any neglect in selling and advertising is bound to produce a distressing effect later, he said. The buying habit must be retained, people should not lose touch with products.

Increase In Marriages

Canadian Towns And Cities Show The Strongest Trend

In Canadian towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, the number of marriages increased 23 per cent. in 1940; in all Canada, 19 per cent. In the first third of 1941, the urban marriages were "up" 49 per cent. compared with the same period two years ago. In 1940 the number of births in the towns and cities represented an increase of 12½ per cent.; in all Canada, less than 6½ per cent. While the figures for the Dominion as a whole are therefore somewhat smaller than the reports from urban centres indicated might be the case, they are impressive enough. As a result of the higher birthrate, the "natural increase" in Canada's population, excess of births over deaths rose from 120,517 in 1939 to 132,988 in 1940.—The Toronto Star.

Vitamin Bread

Hope To Establish A Standard Grade Of Flour For The Purpose

Hope for establishment of a government standard grade or brand of flour and bread containing a minimum amount of vitamin B1 was expressed in an address prepared for delivery at Guelph, Ont., by Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist, Ottawa. He spoke at the regional convention of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists.

Dr. Newman suggested the vitamin should come from the wheat itself and not from synthetic processes, and that measures be passed insuring that those offering such flour or bread for sale would be complying with legal minimum requirements.

"We believe that if and when such a loaf comes to be recognized by the medical people of this country and sponsored by our own department of health, that our white bread will once again come to be regarded as the 'real staff of life'," he continued.

"We feel that an increased consumption of the new type of bread which we feel sure will sooner or later appear on the market, not only will mean much to the health of our people but will assist materially in increasing the consumption of bread and therefore wheat."

Tests of commercial flours used by bakers at present showed vitamin B1 at approximately 150 international units per pound. Dr. Newman said, while the objective desired was at least 400 international units per pound.

Freedom is only for those who defend it, says Canon Cody. And so is peace of mind.

The blitzkrieg fish, known to experts as the torpedo ray, was the largest ever handled by the Aquarium staff.

Danger To Face

Another Common Enemy That's A Menace To Manhood

Summer diarrhoea of babies, typhoid fever, eye diseases and other dangerous and painful infections come in the wake of the common house fly. We face this danger every year during the hot weather. Lectures and writings by medical men, health authorities, and other experts have done a lot towards educating people to fight this menace.

However, you cannot educate a fly and flies, being no respecters of persons, still invade our homes and stores with impunity. When you consider that the bacteria on a single fly's hairy body may number five million and that these carriers of germs are born and bred in filth which may be deposited in food or on the infant in his cot, it can readily be understood how important it is to exterminate every fly without delay.

And flies, if left alone, multiply phenomenally, too! Of the many methods for killing flies, probably the quickest, most humane and most deadly is to place a few Wilson's Fly Pads in the most suitable places throughout the house. They're inconspicuous and kill all the flies—once and for all. It's such an easy way to eliminate the fly menace in our homes and stores and thus help make our community a healthier place in which to live.

Another point of interest to people who suffer from those troublesome and destructive pests—ants—Wilson's Fly Pads offer a sure-death remedy. Just a teaspoonful of sugar, water and a Wilson's Fly Pad is all that's needed.

Identity Never Solved

Mystery Veteran Of First Great War Dies In Hospital

Mystery surrounding the true identity of "Jordan X. X. Smith," a patient at Westminster Military hospital in London for 20 years, remained unsolved following his death on June 30.

A veteran of the first Great War, his mind and speech were affected by shock and he could mumble only a few incoherent words. Out of such mummings came the name "Jordan X. X. Smith" for hospital records. Smith was sent to Ripon, England reparation camp, in 1919 with a group of war prisoners released from Germany. He wore wearing a German military uniform but it was not known whether he fought for the allies or the enemy.

He was sent to Canada and then to the Westminster hospital where he remained until his death.

A telegram telling of his death was sent to a woman in Jersey City, N.J., who claimed him as a brother, but it was returned.

Air Training Plan

To Train Ground Crew Personnel For Overseas Work

Hon. C. G. Power, minister of national defence for air, said that the Commonwealth Air Training Plan is producing 25 per cent. more pilots, air observers, air gunners and wireless operators than was expected when the plan was first projected. Mr. Power also revealed that training of ground crews has been so successful that it is proposed to man all 25 R.C.A.F. squadrons to be formed overseas. R.C.A.F. squadrons now are manned by Royal Air Force ground crews.

Several thousand ground crew personnel will be trained for overseas work, he said.

The air minister added that one of the most interesting experiments in the training plan was formation of the "composite school" for the "washed-out" pilot, revealing for the first time setting up of such a school. It is located at Trenton, Ont., and is under direction of Squadron Leader Denton Massey.

"Only one per cent. of the washed-out pilots have been granted their discharge if they wish, but they would rather remain to be of some assistance in the great cause."

Nazis Have Dropped Leaflets Telling Britons To Give Up

Leaflets dropped on the British Isles by Nazi planes advised Britons to give up because they would be doomed to starvation "this year or early next year." The leaflets, single sheets printed on both sides in English, quote various statements by President Roosevelt on British aid and German claims of the sinking of innumerable British ships in the battle of the Atlantic. Britain's avenues of supply are being "finally" closed, the leaflets said.

Anthony Eden Says War Will Be Waged Until Enemy Defeated

London.—Foreign Secretary Eden reaffirmed Britain's determination to destroy Hitler and all he stands for. "We are not in any circumstances prepared to negotiate with him at any time on any subject," Mr. Eden told an outdoor meeting. "We are all out to beat Hitler. We shall not let go until we have done the job and we welcome all those who will give us a hand to finish it."

Mr. Eden added the warning that "we should make the greatest mistake were we to imagine that extension of the conflict into Russia justified us in relaxing our vigor even for an instant."

"On the contrary," he said, "this latest example of the insatiable German appetite should cause those in all countries who treasure their freedom to redouble their efforts."

"In the next few months, the war will be intensified. The pace will quicken, and so must our own enterprise."

Eden predicted a new German peace offer and rejected it in advance.

"We anticipate that Hitler, at a moment he considers opportune during his campaign in Russia, will seek to present himself in another of his occasional theatrical roles," Mr. Eden told an outdoor meeting at Leeds.

"This time, his make-up will be that of the man of peace. Internal conditions in Germany may make this false posturing necessary for him for a spell. He will offer smooth assurances and specious promises to the hope of lulling some foolish birds. It might, therefore, be useful that I should now declare the position of His Majesty's government in respect to any peace offer by Hitler."

"Russian forces are putting up stiff and stubborn resistance. "We shall do our utmost to help them, or help anyone else who fights Hitler."

"Experience has taught us the stern realities of the world in which we live, and that the foundations of peace are constant vigilance and sufficient armed strength to strike and overwhelm any possible aggressor."

"A new order will not grow and will not endure unless it is justly framed, strongly ordered and firmly maintained. It must be no scrap of paper to be torn to shreds while those charged with its observance stand aside indifferent or preoccupied."

"In this war we seek no material gain. We pursue no selfish ambition. We claim neither territory nor prize. We have but one aim—to break the power of the tyrant Hitler so that nations may be free to work together to build a saner and happier world in security and at peace."

"The head of the German state stands condemned by his own deeds as a man of perjured faith. We are not in any circumstances prepared to negotiate with him at any time on any subject."

"We shall intensify our war effort until he and all he stands for are utterly destroyed."

Mr. Eden referred to the flight of Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy, to Scotland, observing:

"However little the German people may be encouraged to speculate or reflect, there are some who begin to see the perils ahead and are correspondingly anxious and perplexed."

"Resultant confusion of thought finds expression in a strange variety of ways, including the paraffin descent of a deputy fuhrer on a Scottish farm."

"We shall no doubt see stranger happenings than that before we are through with the men who now rule Germany."

Return To Canada

Group Of Officers To Take Army Courses Here

Ottawa.—A group of 16 Canadian officials, all majors and captains, have returned from service with the Dominion forces in Britain to take army courses in Canada. All will have a brief furlough before taking up their new work.

They included Capt. Douglas Cunningham, G.M., of Calgary. Capt. Cunningham won his decoration, the George Medal, for removing an unexploded time bomb from a factory in Britain.

Others in the group were: Maj. C. A. Lyndon, Edmonton; Maj. A. T. Dixon, Regina; Capt. G. P. Hartling, Edmonton; Capt. L. H. Young, Winnipeg; Capt. J. S. Adam, Victoria; Capt. A. F. B. Knight, Winnipeg.

The officers said the Canadians overseas are in good spirits and more anxious than ever to take a crack at Hitler now that Germany has invaded Russia.

All agree that perhaps one of the most frightening aspects of the war is the fact that chocolate bars and cigarettes are becoming rarer in Britain. Many munched candy bars as their first act on reaching Canada.

Wheat Quota

Initial Delivery Expected To Be At Least Five Bushels To Acre

Edmonton.—Trade Minister MacKinnon said in an interview he expected the initial delivery quota for the 1941 wheat crop will be at least five bushels an acre. He added the quota will be increased as space becomes available.

The minister said the new temporary grain storage plants at Port Arthur and Port William will hold 51,000,000 bushels. Wheat is being taken to one or two of these buildings and others will be ready not later than Aug. 15.

Mr. MacKinnon added he expected wheat exports this year will total 225,000,000 bushels compared with an estimate of 140,000,000 to 170,000,000 bushels, and will reduce the prospective carryover at the end of July to from 475,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels compared with earlier estimates of about 575,000,000 bushels.

He warned "this improvement in the statistical position does not lessen the seriousness of the wheat problem we face with upwards of 500,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand at the end of this month and harvesting of the 1941 crop not far away."

Air Training Plan

Fifteen More Air School May Be Established In West

Ottawa.—Establishment of 15 more air force schools in western Canada, most of them in Saskatchewan and Alberta, will be undertaken shortly, it is learned reliably here. Final details of this expansion of the Commonwealth air training plan will be arranged, it is understood, by Hon. C. G. Power, air minister, during his present visit to Britain. Locations of the new schools will all be chosen from sites already surveyed, and in accord with usual policy such sites are not likely to be announced immediately.

Red Cross Co-operation

Toronto, Dr. Fred W. Routley, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society, announced that in reply to a request from the Australian Red Cross the Canadian society will ship 5,000 prisoners of war food parcels each week for Australian soldiers captured in the east.

HEADS 4TH DIVISION

Brigadier Lionel F. Page, D.S.O., (left) has been appointed general officer commanding the 4th Canadian division, with the rank of major-general, the department of national defence announced. General Page commanded the Canadian troops in Iceland last year, and then went on to England, where he was in command of Canadian base units. His home is at Rothsay, N.B. The department also announced the appointment of Col. W. C. Hyde, D.S.O., of Montreal, to command the Royal Canadian Artillery in the 4th division and of Col. M. H. S. Penhale (right), of Ottawa, to succeed Brigadier Hyde as commander of Petawawa camp. He also gets the rank of brigadier.

DEVELOPS PLANE DETECTOR

Credited with developing Britain's newly announced radar plane detector, a device which warns of approaching aircraft, is Robert Alexander Watson, 49, Scottish scientist. The device played an extremely important part in the Battle of Britain last September.

Fish Story

Fly Fresh Trout From Canada To England

London.—This fish story is true to tradition!

J. P. Bickell, returning to Britain after a fortnight's trip to Ottawa and Washington on behalf of the British air ministry, dropped in at the Royal Canadian Air Force officers' mess in Newfoundland Monday afternoon.

An inviting array of freshly caught speckled brook trout caught his eye and he thought it would be a good idea to take along a few. An obliging officer packed some in a tin before the take-off a couple of hours later.

Tuesday morning the Canadian mining man's bomber alighted at a British airport at about the same time Canadian Air Minister C. G. Power arrived in another big machine.

Mr. Bickell produced the tin, and the cook in the Royal Air Force officers' mess prepared a tasty dish, which was shared among the passengers of both aircraft. Needless to say all the fish disappeared.

It wasn't long before reports were current the King had breakfasted on salmon flown to Britain from Canada, but Buckingham palace said, "We know nothing at all about it."

Mr. Bickell, who spent two days at his home in Toronto during his trip, commented: "That one certainly grew fast and it's the first time I've heard trout change into salmon."

Barred From Civil Service

No Men Of Military Age Will Be Given Employment

Ottawa.—The government has ordered that no more men of military age be employed in the civil service until the war is over.

An order-in-council to this effect was published. The order directs: "That during the continuance of the present war and until it is otherwise ordered no male person of military age shall be appointed to the public service unless he is ineligible for service in the forces or unless the civil service commission certifies that his appointment is necessary in the public interest."

London.—An announcement by the ministry of food said the Canadian Red Cross is sending Britain 300,000 pounds of fruit in the form of jam during the current season.

General Wavell Sums Up The War Situation In The Middle East

Leakage Of News

Nazi Radio In Dublin In Touch With Berlin

London.—The government was warned in House of Commons that "the transmitting station of the German legation in Dublin gives direct communication to Berlin" and a cabinet spokesman gave assurance that "all practicable steps" had been taken to prevent leakage of information about British troop dispositions in Northern Ireland.

Sir William Dawson, Conservative, called attention to the German radio channel and Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, suggested that the German legation's diplomatic bags provided another leakage. Since Eire is neutral, Germany has maintained a diplomatic staff in Dublin.

Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, replied it would be "contrary to the public interest to make any statement as to various measures taken to control the sending of information out of the British Isles but you can accept my assurance that all possibilities have been borne in mind."

Finnish Relations

Britain To Maintain Diplomatic Relations With Finland

London.—The British government announced that it still is maintaining diplomatic relations with Finland and that relations with Sweden "remain normal."

Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons that Sweden had declared its intention to remain neutral despite granting passage of one German division across Sweden to Finland.

Mr. Eden's statement that relations with Finland were being maintained was his only answer to a question on whether the government regarded Finland as neutral since her entry into the Russo-German war.

Dramatic Effort

Leads Flight Safely To Base Without Navigational Aids

London.—Acting Squadron Leader J. P. Thompson, of Perth, Ont., attached to Royal Air Force squadron 139, operating in the middle east, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. It was announced.

The cross was awarded Thompson for his conduct in leading a flight safely to its base without the aid of navigational equipment after an attack on a convoy last May.

The air ministry said the dramatic exploit occurred during an attack on a large convoy west of Lampedusa, a large island between Malta and Tunis.

Cairo.—General Sir Archibald Wavell, in a farewell interview before leaving to become commander-in-chief in India, summed up the war situation in the Middle East, giving the main points as follows:

Syria: Things a bit sticky. Progress has been slow but is continuing and we hope to overcome Vichy resistance before long.

Western desert: "Things in the western desert are satisfactory . . . the morale of all troops is remarkably high."

Gen. Wavell told a group of correspondents attached to his headquarters that the German attack on Russia gives the British Middle East forces a breathing spell to consolidate their gains.

In a remark which he did not amplify he told the newsmen: "Perhaps I'll see some of you correspondents in India."

Gen. Wavell said that if the Germans had concentrated their air force in the Middle East instead of invading Russia, they would have given the R.A.F. a "pretty difficult time." He went on:

"What the Germans will do, if they succeed in overcoming the Russians, is hard to foresee . . .

"Russia's strength lies in her great reserves and manpower and vast space in which to operate in case things go wrong."

"British defenses in the Middle east are now in a pretty satisfactory state. I don't think any commander would be served there by 1 by officers and men."

"East Africa is rapidly being cleaned up . . . That's something of an achievement by General Cunningham and Platt, eliminating 200,000 Italian troops in East Africa."

"In the western desert, the enemy does not show any signs of coming on again after the recent activity when we returned to our original positions."

Return To Britain

Group Of Aliens Sent To Canada Back In United Kingdom

Ottawa.—A large group of German and Italian-born men who had been interned in Canada, have been returned to the United Kingdom with the latest movement of Canadian troops.

"They are sent home at the direction of the British home office after having been certified after investigation as non-dangerous."

It was understood here the aliens being sent back to the United Kingdom were of the refugee type. All, of course, were civilians, the spokesman said. They were caught in the general roundup of aliens conducted in Britain more than a year ago.

Wendell Willkie Says United States Navy Will Convoy Ships

New York.—Wendell L. Willkie declares "I am quite sure that before long now the great force of the American navy will be brought into play to insure the delivery" of supplies to Great Britain.

Willkie made the statement at the National Broadcasting Company studios in a recording which was used in a shortwave broadcast to the entire world. NBC released the speech immediately after it was recorded.

The 15-minute address was translated into Spanish, German, Italian, Portuguese and French for a broadcast commemorating Independence Day.

"Liberty" said the 1940 Republican presidential candidate, "like all doctrines, must be an expanding doctrine. It must be constantly searching out for new areas, or else it will die."

"We understand that if we permit the last stronghold of liberty in Europe to fall before the onslaught of totalitarianism that the opportunity to save liberty in America will be lessened and, therefore, the overwhelming percentage of the American people are resolved that at whatever hazard or cost, we will sustain the fighting men of Britain."

Reviewing the rights and privileges of men and women in a democracy, and describing the characteristics of the American people, Willkie declared:

"I have lived among them. I know them well. And despite the occasional hesitation and doubts, the American people will reach out, will give their utmost to see that this precious thing we call liberty shall not disappear from the world, either in Europe or in Asia or in America."

At another point, Willkie asserted that "the spirit of our people is arising to direct that force (industrial and agricultural resources) so that totalitarianism will disappear from this world."

Willkie recalled a recent conversation he had with men with whom he served in the United States army during the last war and said he told them he was proud that the leaders in the United States now fighting "against isolationism and defeatism" are former soldiers.

"Many people preached for many years to those soldiers that all they did in the last war was futile and to no avail. As I told them, they did not make a mistake of fighting that first world war—as a matter of fact, if they had not, perhaps to-day there would be no liberty to fight for."

"Their mistake was not fighting after the war as citizens to see that the kind of world was brought into being in which there could exist no such force as totalitarianism to-day."

Earlier, in a domestic radio broadcast, "Voices for Freedom," Willkie asserted that unless the United States used her navy immediately to insure deliveries to Great Britain, "England will not and cannot survive."

British Invasion Of The Nazi Held Coast Is Now Possibility

London.—The magazine "Aeroplane" hinted that the Royal Air Force's daylight sweeps and nightly poundings of the French coast may be a prelude to troop landings on the continent before Aug. 1.

The magazine said the Germans had been persuaded that "no combined offensive by British arms can be undertaken for several months."

"The R.A.F.," it added, "has been busy for three weeks casting doubts on that assumption."

"Before the month is out there may be developments which would cause more doubts and hearten all the people over whose lands the struggle must be renewed."

"British strategy is still that of renewing the sinews of war and some of them are now to be found in France. But another form of strategic help to Russia is also in the making and France is probably concerned in that, too."

Meanwhile, Aeroplane asserted, Germans must guess as "to where and when and how the next pieces of British intervention will take place."

At about the same time Reuters news agency distributed a despatch, credited to independent French sources, which said that half the German forces of occupation had been withdrawn from France.

Pilots taking part in the sweep over France reported they are having difficulty in bringing the German fighters to action, the Nazis keeping out of range until the R.A.F. planes are homeward bound.

Portland Oregonian: "Will swing music endure?" asks a critic, rhetorically. We supposed it was the music-lover who had to.

SO ALSO IS THE VILLAGE

(The Printed Word)

Business never stays the same. One does not need to think hard to remember grand old firms which have gradually disintegrated for not keeping abreast of the times. In many instances, not only is the village blacksmith gone, but so also is the village. The horse will remain a useful animal but the buggy is becoming a museum piece. Other industries of the horse-and-buggy era have survived—where they have survived—mainly because of the resourcefulness, adaptability, alertness and energy of certain people in that industry.

The printed word goes on forever, but from decade to decade it is never the same industry. It survives because printing has become a universal human need. Even radio is not a threat, for radio's contribution to the world's need for information has been simultaneousness, and that only. In other respects, radio is a poor substitute for printing. So long as the printing industry retains its ability to keep abreast of the wishes of its customers, who are the literate people of the world, it need fear no rival.

The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is operating 62 schools from coast to coast. Canada provides 80 per cent of the students.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

LEADERS of governments and political parties are supposed to lead. Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Conservative Leader Hanson have both toured western Canada. Both have given addresses on issues of the day without committing themselves; without giving leadership to the masses. When virile leadership is needed, such as Winston Churchill is giving to the British people, it is sadly lacking in Canada. Instead of the government or the Opposition showing initiative, they are simply waiting till public opinion is sufficiently strong or organized to make them do something more than utter mere platitudes. Ordinarily a government moves no faster than public opinion compels it to—that is under normal conditions pertaining to Democratic nations.

TAKE our provincial premier—he's different. He led his people into a visionary promised land, where dividends would be paid monthly, credit would be unlimited and by some mythical reasoning or juggling it would not be necessary to pay taxes. Blackmore down at Ottawa tried to tell the government how the cost of the war should be financed. Social credit leaders captured the imagination of the people, even though their rosy promises could not be fulfilled. Of course, they promised something for nothing—always a good lure to entice people to take a chance, as they will at the circus or the midway, or in a raffle for a prize. But it shows that public opinion can be swayed or led, otherwise so many Albertans would not have blindly followed the lead into this make-believe-land of Social Credit.

AL across Canada there is a growing demand for "all out" effort on the part of Canada in the war. Many country weeklies—which are nearer to the pulse of the great masses of the people than mediums of much larger circulations—confirm this. Here is a sample from the weekly newspaper of Bowmanville, Ontario (The Canadian Statesman) which is typical of many others:

"Get ready for it whether you like it or not; whether it means unity or disunity; party political oblivion or gory demonstrations, for the four-square, firm-jawed British element in our population which carried the weight in 1914-1918 is assuming a grim determination that no element or elements within our national boundaries can stand against an all-out effort to preserve British freedom. We have observed the press reports from side-line correspondents giving a picture of the progress of Prime Minister King in the West, acting as his own recruiting sergeant; and from a careful sum-up, it looks as though he is getting prepared for a move of some sort which will meet majority wishes. And it is almost abundantly clear that he went west, not to study defences, because he is just 27 years short of being a military expert. In other words, the last war broke out in 1914.

"It is abundantly clear that he went west to study at first hand the political situation, because he has been for some thirty years or more a political expert. Now he has found out for himself and probably from Mr. Gardiner too, just how he must shape his course to meet his boast of an "all-out" effort which Britishers demand and at the same time circumvent his "no conscription" promise of March, 1940, and subsequently. This holding fast to the backing of 64 solid seats from one province must dissolve in the face of the growing determination so manifest elsewhere today."

IT seems so ludicrous that funny stunts are put on to boost the war effort. Take the Victory Torch episode. It stirred up enthusiasm, to raise over six hundred million dollars for the Victory Loan, but the people would have subscribed it anyway even had there been no symbolic torch. It was a demonstration of the determination of Canadian people to back up an all-out effort to help win the war. Then there was that proclamation read by mayors which it is safe to say did not influence recruiting, for there were no young men on hand to hear it read. There does seem so much time and effort wasted which could be used far more profitably in direct action. Almost every morning newspaper offices are deluged with a lot of useless material from government departments which cost a lot of money and is of very doubtful value towards the war effort. This morning, as an instance, there arrived 28 pages of foolscap size mimeographed copy ostensibly for publication. A newspaper would have hardly any room for any other material if it used it, so 99 per cent of it goes to the waste paper basket, with a sigh that so much time and wasted effort counts for practically nothing. It is these things that bring home to us the appalling waste on the part of government departments and makes us question how much of the vast sums being raised to prosecute the war are being uselessly expended. If private business were carried on by similar methods, there would be some appalling deficits marked up on financial statements each year.

THERE IS one bright spot in our Canadian war effort, and that is the rapidly which the Royal Canadian Air Force is turning out airmen under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. From service flying schools throughout Canada a steady stream of gallant young men are going overseas to build up the mighty air armada which will seal the fate of Hitler and his gangsters. Winston Churchill's address on Monday was heartening to the people throughout the Empire, and must also have been encouraging to those subjugated peoples at present under the iron heel of the Hun. They were the most cheering messages the prime minister has uttered since war began, though he did not minimize the danger which still exists and against which he urged the peoples to steel their powers of resistance. Churchill is really a great leader, symbolic of the tenacity of the British bulldog. Hitler must have gnashed his teeth when he heard the cheers of the people during the broadcast—the cheers of people who had suffered the most terrible devastation that could have been visited upon them.

Pay The Premium

Apart from the natural beauties that are an ever-present lure and attraction to tourists in Canada, the premium on United States dollars is the greatest possible aid to promotion of traffic from that country. In terms of dollars, it provides a bonus of ten percent. One enterprising group has pictured it as "one day free in ten." To others, it is a pleasing novelty.

For any one of these conceptions to be effective, the premium must be paid by the Canadians catering to the tourist. It is not only a national service to pay the premium, paramount in wartime, but it is the law as well. It is an offence, punishable by severe penalties, to accept United States currency at anything other than the official rate.

Because Canada is in urgent need of United States dollars to buy aeroplanes and other vital war equipment in the U.S.A., this American currency should be turned in to the banks without undue delay. It is an offence to hold it for more than a reasonable period of a few days after it has been received.

No Canadian loses by payment of the premium. Merchants, hotel-keepers and others pay the current premium of ten percent and the bank pay out a like premium in receiving the American currency. The premium is ten percent, whether it be for U.S. paper currency, bank cheques, travellers' cheques or silver.

It is a national service and a patriotic duty—PAY THE TOURIST HIS PREMIUM.

FLU EPIDEMIC

Ever since the time of Hippocrates (400 B.C.) huge tides of flu have washed the world. These epidemics have not always run in cycles of 20 years. In modern times the span between them seems to be about 3 decades. A wave of flu inundated Europe and the North American continent during the 1830's. There were others in 1847, 1889 and the greatest scourge of the kind in history occurred just after the last war in 1918-19, which killed more than 20 millions of people all over the world and more than half a million in the U.S. and Canada.

The cause is a number of mysterious germs only one group of which the influenza virus A was identified seven years ago. This virus is now rampant on the Pacific Coast.

Under mild and smiling skies, an epidemic of influenza flared recently in California; swept into Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico. Fortunately the visitation was a mild one. The victims had only slight fever, sniffles, headache, sore limbs, backache and a tight feeling in the chest. Los Angeles had 50,000 cases with but 70 deaths, most of these being due to terminal pneumonia. The schools with over 700 pupils had about 29 per cent of the children ill, but very properly the schools still carried on. Half the pretty girls of Hollywood were sick in bed—the proper place for them. Sixteen members of the University of Southern California Football team were put out of business. Hospital staffs were sadly depleted. Men in training camps to the number of 1400 were down with flu.

FIRST CANADIAN FORT IS REBUILT

Nova Scotia went back more than 300 years for the plans which were used in reconstructing the Fort Royal Habitation, which housed the first Europeans to settle in America north of the Gulf of Mexico — and which was recently opened to the public by the Hon. T. A. Cress, Minister of Mines and Resources. That famous fort, where Champlain instituted the Order of the Good Time, stands today as it did when hardy French explorers made it their headquarters in 1605.

The rambling log buildings, as much like the original as human ingenuity could make them, are the product of Nova Scotia craftsmen. Hand-hewn beams and floor boards are pegged into position; wrought-iron hinges hold the doors and solid shutters in place, and other hand-worked iron is used for bars on the windows and decorative work.

If it is possible for one place to be "more historic" than another, this one can be described only in superlatives. DeMonts and Champlain arrived in Annapolis Basin in 1604 and named it Port Royal. The fort built in the following year was the scene of battle after battle between the French and English and had actually changed hands eight times by 1710 when it was finally captured by a strong expedition of New England troops from Boston. The name was changed to Annapolis Royal in honor of Queen Anne who then occupied the English throne.

The reconstruction of the ancient habitation at Annapolis Royal — to give it its modern name — has attracted wide attention in Canada and the United States. Many individuals and organizations have donated old records, furnishings and other articles to lend to the authenticity of this famous site, 20 miles from Digby by Dominion Atlantic Railway. Digby is the western waterway entrance to Nova Scotia, connection with Saint John, N.B., being maintained by the S.S. Princess Helene. Other famous military structures still standing at Annapolis Royal include the ramparts of Fort Anne. The park, 28 acres in extent, includes a later French fort completed in 1707 and captured in 1710, and the officers' quarters erected by the British a few years later. Theatre Notes

Tonight and Friday Nelson Eddy, aided with the biggest cast of years, stars in the feature "Let Freedom Ring." It depicts a turbulent chapter of life on America's frontier. The supporting cast includes such names as Edward Arnold, Victor McLaglen, Lionel Barrymore, Charles Butterworth, Guy Gibbee and the lovely Virginia Bruce, who takes the leading feminine role.

At the week-end America's favorite Hit-Wits, Jack Benny and Fred Allen, appear for the first time together. The feminine role is played by Mary (My Heart Belongs to Daddy) Martin. Rochester is also in the cast. Songs sung by Miss Martin include "Do You Know Why" "Isn't That Just Like Love?" "Dearest, Dearest," and for the first time on the screen "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

At Cole's theatre, Bellevue, this week-end two screen favorites, James Cagney and Olivia DeHavilland, are co-starred in "Strawberry Blonde."

THE PASSING YEARS

Here's what Fred Smyth says in his column in the Cranbrook Courier which reminds us how swiftly the years pass even in this comparatively young country:

Tempus Fugit! The fact that The Courier this week is starting on its 23rd year is a gentle reminder of how swiftly the years are passing. Then again to the pioneers of East Kootenay it is difficult to reconcile the fact that the Crows Nest Pass Railway was completed just 43 years ago this summer. There are still living in the district several who helped build this railway. Charles McNab built a good part of the tote road even before grading was begun. Hugh Brock, who ran the first locomotive into town, is still with us, and so is Fred Genest, who drove the last spike at Kootenay Landing, and so is George Plourd, who pounded down spikes all the way from Mached west, just to name a few. Many are living in other parts of the country, and not a few have passed over the Great Divide.

HE CANNOT READ HIS TOMBSTONE WHEN HE IS DEAD . . .

If with pleasure you are viewing,
Any work that man is doing—
If you like him, if you love him tell him now!

Don't withhold your approbation
Till the parson makes oration
And lies with snowy lilies on his brow.

For no matter how you shout it:
He won't really care about it,
He won't know how many tears
Drop you have shed;

If you think some praise is due him,
NOW's the time to slip it to him,
For he cannot read his tombstone
When he's dead.

More than fame and more than money,
Is the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend!

For it gives to life a savor,
And it makes you stronger, braver,
And it gives you heart and spirit to the end.

If he earns your praise, bestow it!
If you like him, let him know it!
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over,
And he's underneath the clover,
For he cannot read him tombstone
when he's dead.

Steam Coal Furnishes Power

COAL will always play an important part in industrial development, as it has in the past. There are manufacturing processes for which there are no substitutes for certain requirements and in which coal will always retain its supremacy.

THE Crows Nest Pass Coal Fields are the most important in Canada for the production of Steam Coal, both for railroad and industrial purposes, such as power plants, where high grade coal of superior heating value is required. Our mines excel in producing coal of the highest heat values.

Editor Kew of Staveland says he took the names of all the married men from Clareholm that he saw in the nudist show at the Crescent Shows Tuesday night and that anxious wives can have same published in the Staveland Advertiser. He also says that the show wasn't so hot after all, and could hardly compete with the Willow Creek swimming pool on any hot Sunday afternoon.

According to Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, it is practically certain that the minimum initial delivery quota for 1941 wheat will be five bushels an acre. "Plans are already well in hand for the crop," he said in Edmonton Wednesday last, "and in all accommodation for some 51,000,000 bushels will be provided for storage space."

Charles A. Lindbergh told an anti-war mass meeting in San Francisco "I would a hundred times rather see my country ally herself with England, or even with Germany with all her faults, than with the cruelty, the godlessness, and the barbarism that exists in Soviet Russia." So far he hasn't done anything but try to help Germany win the war.

OUR FLAG! KEEP IT FLYING!

High on the hilltop, or deep in the valley,
Wherever our Flag flies, there men will rally,
Knowing that ever beneath its fold
They'll find what they value far higher than gold.

Our Flag! Keep it flying,—the red, white and blue,
Oh God, keep us steadfast, earnest and true,
On God relying,—our Flag! Keep it flying!

Symbol of liberty, freedom and honour,
Thou of security art still the donor,
Love, Truth and Purity ne'er can lag
When shadowed on high by our own dear Flag.

Our Flag! Keep it flying,—the red, white and blue,
Oh God, keep us steadfast, earnest and true,
On God relying,—our Flag! Keep it flying! —Billie

TOO ENGLISH FOR THE ENGLISH? (The Macleod Gazette)

Casual talks with tourists reveals that they came from not only Canada and adjacent States of the republic, but also from further afield. Seeing a car with a New York license plate, the occupants were asked from which part of that State they came. The lady in the car said she had come from South America, her husband being employed with the Shell Oil Co. there. Further enquiry being prompted by her English accent, she stated she had come from England to meet her husband and had found such difficulty in booking a return passage to England that they decided to take a trip by plane and car from South America to Canada. They were thrilled with the Calgary Stampede and spoke very highly of their impressions of Canada. Even if they were unable to return to England, they had more than made up for it by visiting Canadian cities, including Victoria and Vancouver. And it was of interest to note that the lady remarked that she didn't like Victoria as well as other Canadian cities, because she thought it was too English, while other places had a more friendly atmosphere and people greeted you much more freely.

ANOTHER CHAMPION OF THE SKY IS BORN

Under the skilled hands of the workmen the fuselage of another British Spitfire takes shape. British aircraft production has increased enormously despite air raids, and even greater output is on the way.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND this big plane was brought down by a British fighter. The R.A.F. despite inferiority in numbers of men and machines, has shown itself superior in fighting ability to bring down German machines. —Photograph supplied by courtesy of Department of Public Information, Ottawa.

ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT CAN WAIT

In the long history of the St. Lawrence Seaway and power proposals there has not been a more inopportune time chosen to bring the matter up for a vote in Washington and Ottawa. The United States Senate refused the project in 1934 when depression justified the undertaking of vast public works for the purpose of giving employment. Ontario and Quebec rejected the plan in 1938 when there was some measure of prosperity and we could look to the future more clearly. Now, in the midst of a war of world-wide proportions, the scheme is brought up again.

Large Crowds of Pass Citizens Expected to Attend Carnival

$100 Victory Band and Chesterfield Suite Are Major Prizes; Proceeds for Elks' Charities and Lord Mayor's Fund.

The evenings of Saturday and Monday, July 19 and 21 will be of merriment as Coleman Elks invite one and all to their annual carnival in Coleman arena. War is still with us and London is still being raided, causing untold damage and suffering to thousands of human beings. To relieve in small measure the suffering of these people part of the net proceeds of the carnival will be donated to the Lord Mayor's fund of London, for the relief of air-raid victims. No one will deny that this is a very gracious gesture on the part of the Elks and which merits everyone's full support.

In addition to helping the plight of persons overseas the Elks are alive to the fact that Canadian war charities are in need of help.

Organizations such as the Red Cross, Salvation Army and many others are given material aid during the year. Such funds are then distributed by these organizations to Canadian soldiers as well as those overseas.

Local needy cases are also taken care of by the Elks. Persons in need because of sickness or unemployment are quietly helped without the fanfare of publicity and as a result the public is not aware of these humanitarian deeds. At Christmas time baskets of food are given to many needy citizens and as for the children, well, it just would not be Christmas without a free matinee and a bagful of candy.

The Elks lodge is truly a grand organization to keep alive in Coleman. The members give many hours of labor for the welfare of their fellow citizens who should reciprocate by attending the carnival and spending freely at the various booths.

Music for the Jitney dance will be played by Edle's orchestra. Booths for Bingo, blankets, lamps, tapestry, etc., will be wide open.

Three girls are still hotly contesting the honor of being crowned carnival queen. They are Helen Gate, Fay Grant and Thelma Williams. Help your favorite win with the honor by buying tickets on the major prizes. The winning girl will receive a handsome prize as a reward for her good work.

Vital Part of Work

Photography Is Used Extensively By British Coastal Command

Photography plays a vital part in the work of the Coastal Command which safeguards Britain against invasion and fights the Battle of the Atlantic at its source, that is to say, up and down the coastline of Europe from Trondheim to Bordeaux. There, squadrons of the Coastal Command attack enemy U-boat bases, harass supply ships creeping down the Norwegian fjords or along the Channel coasts, and intercept the Luftwaffe's raids on Britain's shipping. Not only does the Command record every movement of the enemy across the Narrow Seas, but it keeps the eagle eye of its cameras upon suspicious looking surface craft.

Back On Duty

Thrilling Story Of Pilot's Crash And Escape From Crete

Flt.-Lt. D. S. G. Honor, who was shot down into the sea off Crete, lost for six days on the enemy-occupied island and saved by a big Sunderland flying boat, which spotted his flashlight signal, is back on duty in Egypt with his Royal Air Force Hurricane squadron.

Honor, awarded a bar to his Distinguished Flying Cross for the Crete exploit which followed the destruction of two Axis aircraft over Maleme airport, told the story when he reached Cairo with a sergeant-pilot of his own flight who was also shot down and who escaped with him.

The flier was attacking Maleme airport and had intercepted and shot down one Junkers 52 and one St9 when he himself was attacked from below.

"With my elevator and aerial control gone, I took what evasive action I could," the Air Ministry News Service quoted him as saying. "Then a Messerschmitt 109 attacked me close to the cliffs of the bay. To stop attacks from astern, I planned down and hit the water with the aircraft hook closed.

"I went down with the machine 50 feet into the sea without even a window open. Somehow I got out and my 'Mae West' brought me to the surface.

"For fully four hours, I tried to get ashore and it took me an hour to do the last 20 yards. I was in despair of ever making it, but eventually drifted to a cave and climbed astride a stalagmite like a hobby horse. . .

"I spent the night in that freezing cave. They were the worst hours of my life. After daylight I swam my way to a little headland, dried out my clothes in the sun and footed it until I reached a goatherd's empty hut."

"After much more tramping," he continued, "I came upon a little patchwork of green and gold fields with a small white house, a sight for sore eyes. It took me four hours to reach the village. Boy who came to greet me left me at a church where the padre gave me water, goats' milk, cheese and rye bread."

"Here I was told that another British pilot had been shot down that day. Almost unbelievably it turned out to be a sergeant-pilot of my own flight. . .

"Then there was a friendly discussion whether the villagers should turn me over to the enemy as we were completely hemmed in. I asked for four hours to think it over, realizing that from their point of view, it would be better to surrender us, as the poor devils had already had six of their villagers shot by the Germans for supposedly withholding information.

"So we started our journey through the German lines. . .

"No drama can be made of our crossing of the island although it was German-occupied in parts but drama did occur. After a meal of eggs and chips given us by French-speaking peasants, night came on and we saw ME109's ground-strafing a nearby air-drome.

"When we heard an aircraft approaching the island we thought it was German until I saw the shape of a Sunderland. We started signaling with pocket torches and I sent out messages in excellent Morse, if I may say so, and was picked up. Actually, my R.A.F. Here, R.A.F. Here, in torchlight saved me, although it was a million-to-one chance, in the Sunderland pilot's words. The Sunderland's crew had to inflate their dinghy to take us aboard."

Using Special Bulbs

New Device Permits Taking Of Night Pictures Without Flash

Unique records are being made of incidents in the air war on Britain, thanks to a device perfected by British inventors. Even at midnight it is now possible, without the use of flash, to take photographs as sharp-cut as any on a sunny day. It is done by using, instead of the usual flash-bulbs, special bulbs screened with infra-red filter coatings which turn the dazzling magnesium flash into a dim red momentary glow, invisible from the air.

Dental Clinic On Wheels Equipped To Follow Troops Under All Conditions

Designed to give service under blitzkrieg conditions, shatter-proof glass and black-out shades that cut off light by night and provides dark room facilities by day for developing X-ray pictures, are features of the mobile dental clinics authorized for the Canadian Dental Corps. Insulated and air-conditioned, the clinics on wheels are lighted from the truck battery, with additional high-powered lamps being fed from a generator. Four trunks contain the equipment, and where the dental officer wishes to work in a building, the equipment is easily removable, and the generator is fitted with a fifty-foot cable.

The detachment for the regular dental clinic is composed of dental officer, dental assistant and an orderly, all from the Canadian Dental Corps. The driver is supplied by the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps which is responsible for the maintenance of the truck part of the clinic.

Camels Did Work Of Horses In B.C. 100 Years Ago

It may surprise a great many people to know that about a hundred years ago or a little more, there were many camels in British Columbia, which were used by the pioneer settlers, horses being scarce and dear at that time. Where they came from, who brought them, or why, we do not know, but a historian of that period relates that a farmer's horse unexpectedly, seeing a camel for the first time, took flight, leaped over a cliff and was killed.

If Finland is looking to Germany for restoration of property stolen by Russia it will be disappointed. A victorious Russia could not be expected to return it. A victorious Germany would not. Finland's best hope is in a peace dictated by Britain and, perhaps, the United States.

CHRISTIANITY EXPANDS IN ASIA

Golden text: So mightily grew the word of the Lord and prevailed. Acts 19:20.
Lesson: Acts 19:1—21:17
Devotional reading: Ephesians 2:1-10.

Explanations and Comments

Two Fruitful Years at Ephesus, Acts 19:8-10. At Ephesus Paul followed his customary method of preaching first of all to the Jews, but when they refused to heed him and spoke evil of "The Way"—the life that accorded with the way of Christ—he left their synagogue with his disciples and preached for two years in the lecture-room of Tyrannus, continuing his labors till "all those that dwell in [the provinces of] Asia heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks."

A Notorious Riot, Acts 19:23-41. The goddess Diana (Artemis), whose chief temple was at Ephesus, was the mother-goddess, the goddess of fertility, "the fountain of nourishment, the reproductive power that kept the world ever the same amid the constant flux of things." Her shrine was constantly visited by crowds of pilgrims, and the making of miniature shrines for them and for the Ephesians was an important industry in Ephesus. There were tiny shrines which were worn as amulets, larger ones which were offered as gifts to the goddess, or were kept in the homes and even placed in the grave beside the corpse "as a sign that the goddess had gone back to the mother who bore him." Many of these little shrines made of marble or terra cotta have been found, but none of silver, the latter having been melted, no doubt, because of their intrinsic value. It was among the makers of these small shrines that no small stir arose concerning Christianity, or the Way.

There was even danger, so Demetrius told his fellow craftsmen, that the temple of the great goddess Diana would fall into disrepute, that she would lose her eminent position. At this they were filled with wrath and cried, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The city was filled with confusions. Gaius and Aristarchus, Paul's companions, were seized and rushed to the mob in the theater. Paul would have gone into the theater had he not been restrained by his disciples and by messages from certain Asiarchs who were his friends and who feared for his life should he venture into the mob's presence. Paul escaped with his life, but not the temple of Diana at Ephesus. He was greatly dejected, "weighed down exceedingly," as he wrote the Corinthians, because of "our affliction which befall us in Asia."

Theatre Battle In Norway

Artists Refuse To Give Their Help To Nazi Propaganda

Following the strong resistance of Norwegian actors and actresses to all attempts to make them use their art to further Nazi propaganda, the puppet government in Oslo has ordered all theatres placed under the control of the so-called Department of Culture and Public Instruction. The word "theatre" is defined as including every establishment that undertakes to perform opera, operettas, vaudeville, musical revues, or even circus acts.

Every "theatre" must henceforth secure a license—one which may be withdrawn at any time in case the performances are deemed not to be in harmony with the "New Order" in Norway. Each theatre must also have a director, licensed and approved by the Department of Culture; and, furthermore, every actor employed must also have a proper license. To get a license the actors are required to sign a contract promising to "co-operate with the state's cultural institutions," meaning in plain words to take part in propaganda broadcasts.

However, latest advices from Oslo state that not only have Norwegian actors refused to compromise with the Nazis, but that all theatres have supported the stand taken by the actors, and have refused to apply for licenses. In reprisal the Germans have seized funds belonging to the Norwegian Actors' Association, taken cash from certain theatres, and have even forbidden some actors to draw money from their own private bank accounts.

Loss Small In Comparison

Bundles for Britain, Inc., reported at New York, that 83 out of 85 cars shipped from the United States had reached Britain, and that only 45,000 out of a total of nearly 3,000,000 items were lost at sea up to June 30. Value of the articles sent in 17 months was $2,543,299.

THE VITAMINS PILING UP

The medical scientists who house-keep vitamins have an unmanageable lot of charges. It used to be that there were but five or six vitamins known and they were called A, B, C and so on. Now chemists believe that there are at least eight varieties of vitamin B and at least ten of vitamin D. One member of the vitamin B family is known as vitamin G, and another as factor Y. Two relatives of the C type are known as J and E.

Perhaps it would be better to call each vitamin by its chemical name. In such case Vitamin E would be known as tocopherol, C as ascorbic acid and B1 as riboflavin. People are now so used to the name vitamin that the change would be confusing. The functions of the several vitamins are of high interest. The widest functioning one is Vitamin A and it is the only one which is synthesized or activated by animals from their plant food. It is found in livers and yellow body fat of most animals and can be stored up for many months.

To obtain sufficient vitamin A, the diet should contain thin green leaves, bright yellow fruits, vegetables such as carrots, corn and sweet potatoes. Vitamin A prevents night-blindness; it is the most important of all vitamins for proper tooth formation in growing children and for resistance to infection.

The richest source of the anti-scurvy Vitamin C, is oranges and lemons. Almost any kind of seed, kept in water until it sprouts and then eaten raw, is a very good substitute. Manual labourers and athletes need large quantities of Vitamin C. This vitamin mysteriously disappears from the bodies of persons having tuberculosis. Victims of diabetes need large amounts of Vitamin C, usually require smaller doses of insulin.

Vitamin D regulates the amount of calcium and phosphorus which the body uses for the building of bones and teeth. It is the only vitamin which does not occur in plant tissue. Its most abundant source is oily fish livers and it is generated in the body by the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Normal adults get all the vitamin D they require when they bask in the sun on beaches. If they drink lots of milk, they need not worry about calcium regulation. Milk may be "fortified" with vitamin D, and by feeding the cows on irradiated yeast, that is, yeast treated with ultraviolet rays.

Vitamin E comes from wheat germ, lettuce and tomato oils. Lack of this vitamin damages the male reproductive organs and produces abortion in the truth about vitamins has yet been the female. Perhaps not one-half the truth about vitamins has yet been published.

Duke Of Aosta

Something About Italian Prisoner And His Connection With Britain

The Duke of Aosta, who by his surrender has now completed the collapse of the Italian empire in Africa, is half French. His mother was the beautiful second daughter of the Comte de Paris, and like her sister, Queen Amelia of Portugal, a friend of Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary. The Italian hostility to England is known to be a bitter grief to her. The Duke of Aosta is a first cousin of the late King Manoel of Portugal, who died in exile in England.

The Duke of Spoleto, brother of the Duke of Aosta, was at one time on a long visit to England, and there was talk of his marrying an Englishwoman—Manchester Guardian.

CHAPTER XIV.

Devona launched her job-hunt that very morning. Clipping the "Help Wanted—Female" column from the big daily paper she'd bought at the station, she borrowed a street map from the desk clerk and planned a campaign.

Naturally, the first day she didn't find anything. Aching tired, she forced down a bowl of soup and a sandwich at a corner drug store and plodded back to the hotel to crawl gratefully into the hard, narrow bed. It had been terribly hard work—walking the long blocks between addresses to save the carfare, waiting in crowded offices, steeling herself for every interview.

But she wasn't really discouraged, she assured herself before she fell asleep of sheer exhaustion. She couldn't expect to find a job the very first time she tried.

Not even the second or third day. Nor, probably, the first week. And by having a "merchant's lunch" at the Owl every noon, she could substitute fruit and milk in her room for dimers. She lost a little weight, of course, but that was to be expected. More alarmingly, her slim resources fast grew slimmer. That was to be expected, too, she realized with threads of panic fraying her courage. She'd have to find something soon!

At the end of the third week Devona took stock, again. This time with desperation gnawing at her. Everywhere, she'd met the same answer. "Sorry, we want experienced help."

Lips trembling with embarrassment—and sudden terror—Devona didn't try to answer, walked blindly out of the shabby foyer into the street. Into the street! That's where she'd be after 3:30 this afternoon if she didn't find something.

At noon Devona pawned the pretty gold wristwatch her father had given her on her 16th birthday and the first real bitterness seeped like acid into her head. When this money was gone it meant—the end. Another 24 hours and she was beaten!

It had begun to rain as she came out of the hotel. A fine, drizzling rain that would ruin her coat and put the finishing touches on her once-smart shoes. Tears much larger than the raindrops pressed at the corners of her eyes. A shabby appearance wouldn't help her cause any.

She ran half a block to the canopied entrance of a night club, huddled, gasping for breath, trembling with fatigue under the gawdy striped awning.

It began to rain now in earnest. A driving, pelting deluge as the sky grew darker. She couldn't go out in that, she thought wearily and sagged against the building. In another moment it might let up.

But in another moment a uniformed doorman stopped watching her covertly and stepped toward her. "Waiting for some one, miss?" he asked, courteous, but his attitude indicated very pointedly that the management didn't encourage loitering in the doorway.

Devona mustered her last scraps of dignity. "Yes—a friend," and hoped it sounded as cool as she intended. It was hard to be dignified with rain dripping from the soggy brim of her hat, seeping into her thin-soled shoes. "Won't you step inside, then, miss?" he persisted.

Devona hesitated, noticed the insignia on his visored cap, El Mexicano, in curving gold braid. Where had she seen that before?

The foyer was deserted. Past the luncheon hour now, it was still too early for the cocktail crowd.

"Who was it you said you wanted to see?" The doorman, still at her elbow, watched her suspiciously.

"Devona hadn't said she wanted to see any one and he knew it. But she had to say something. Anything to give her an excuse to sit down and rest a while in one of these deep-cushioned maroon velvet chairs.

"Mr. —" A name leaped to her tongue out of some subconscious recess of her distracted mind, "Mr. Macias. Mr. Jose Macias, please."

"Certainly, miss." The doorman's attitude changed instantly. "I'll see if he's in."

Drawing a deep breath, Devona wilted into a chair, prayed that Mr. Macias would not be in or would be busy, or something.

But, no luck. He was in and he would be delighted to see her immediately.

Dully she followed the doorman across the foyer to the gray-paneled door marked "Manager." Now for the showdown and then back out into the chaos again. If only she didn't feel so terribly hollow inside, so light-headed.

For a moment, Mr. Macias, alone in his elaborate, maroon-draped office, studied her coldly from behind his broad gray and chromium desk. Then, his smile breaking suddenly into recognition, he rose, came to meet her, hands outstretched.

"But, buenos dias, Senorita! This is an unexpected pleasure," and pulling a silver-velvet chair closer, "Please sit down. I am so happy to see you again. You are in town on a little pleasure trip?"

"Not—exactly," Devona smiled wryly, sank into the chair wearily.

"Shopping, then, perhaps. And look, you will stay for the cocktail hour. I promised you some excitement, I remember." He pulled his own chair closer, his handsome dark eyes quick in their appraisal of her.

"No, thank you," Devona shook her head, anticipated the faint surprise in his face when she saw those sharp, black eyes discover her threadbare, rain-soaked shoes, the neatly darned place in her stocking, the hole in her glove. "You see, I'm hunting a job."

He stared at her, incredulously. "You hunting a job?"

"Yes—a gay little smile. "And so far I haven't been too successful." She tried to laugh lightly, but the effort fell crushing against her mushrooming discouragement, nearly ended in a sob.

"But you are just fooling," Macias scowled, his handsome face breaking almost immediately into another smile. "You want the career. Is not that it, Senorita? Something to play with just to amuse yourself?" Devona shook her head grimly. "No. Something to work at so I can eat!"

For a moment Macias only stared at her. "But you are serious?" "Of course. Terribly serious," She laughed a little. "You see I'm—hungry!"

"But surely, your friend Mr. Brasher—"

Devona interrupted that quickly. "Mr. Brasher and I are no longer—friends." She swallowed hard. "I'm—absolutely on my own. No one even knows where I am. I left home for—personal reasons."

"Come, come. That's too bad. But maybe just a quarrel? You could forgive and—"

"No. I'm never going back," she said quietly. "Not even if it meant an overdose of sleeping powders instead. "That's behind me—forever. Now, I have my own way to make."

"But you are very young—and very beautiful—to face the world alone," Devona shrugged. "Nevertheless, I have to get a job. You don't, by any chance, know of any one who needs an untrained, inexperienced girl who speaks three languages, do you?"

He shook his head slowly. "No, I'm sorry. If I did, I would like to help you. I would like to help the friend of Mr. Brasher."

"But I'm not friend of Mr. Brasher—no more," Devona insisted doggedly. She wouldn't insist under false colors. "But—and this time she succeeded in making her smile real, "I do need a job—desperately."

Her eyes met Macias' bold scrutiny pleadingly, and for an instant her breath stopped as she saw the slight change in his expression. His teeth, even and hard and white in his swarthy face, his smile a bold challenge now. She found herself remembering Dale's way, "Any pretty new face, and with Macias it's off with the old and on with the new." "I see," he was saying, his eyes smiling while he toyed with some idea.

An idea, Devona sensed instinctively, that would be more dangerous, probably than staring. So, rising suddenly, she smiled again.

"Well, it's been nice of you to see me," she said, just as if she noticed nothing of his changed manner. "And if you do hear of a job, let me know."

Macias rose, too. "You must leave your address, Miss Racourne. I will be getting in touch with you."

Even the pseudo-Mexican accent had disappeared from his speech. Not the bowing, anxious limbo now! But still—and more dangerously now—the bold, dark-eyed gallant.

Panicked a little, Devona tried to direct her numb feet to the door. But the long, wearing hours of waiting and waiting, the lack of food, the discouragement—all took sudden toll of her flagging strength.

For a moment, the door she faced wavered crazily, then slipped farther and farther out of reach. She was fainting! Terrified, she clutched at a chair back, missed it, felt herself falling, falling—falling—into a soft, black cloud.

But she mustn't faint! Not here—not now. Desperately she tried to fight her way back. She must keep her wits. She must!

It was no use. Even the floor was giving way under her now. And—somehow—it just didn't matter.

Mail For Soldiers

Name Of Post Office Should Be Included When Mailing To Troops Still In Canada

The incomplete addressing of mail intended for soldiers at training delays in delivery. Honourable William P. Mulock, K.C., Postmaster General, to obviate this situation, again requests the full completion of the public in writing out in full the correct and complete address on all military mail.

It is essential that the post office place-name should always be included in the addresses of mail posted to soldiers still in Canada because their mail is handled by the civil post offices and not by the Army Postal Service. The omission of the "name of place where the soldier is located" has resulted in many such letters and parcels being forwarded to the Base Post Office, where it is found that the Units named in the address are still in Canada. The resultant delay thus caused, and the extra work thrown upon the Canadian Postal Corps in locating the addressees of this mail would be entirely eliminated if the rules of correct addressing are observed.

Mail for delivery in Canada should be addressed with the usual complete particulars—Regimental Number, Rank and Name, Name and details of Unit (i.e., Company or Section, Squadron, Battery, Holding Unit, etc.) and Name of Regiment or branch of the service in full, and the name of the post office where the soldier's unit is located.

Mail for delivery overseas should bear the Regimental Number, Rank and Name of soldier, Name and Details of Unit, (i.e., Company or Section, Squadron, Battery, Holding Unit, etc.) Name of Regiment or branch of the service in full—and the words Canadian Army Overseas, but no place-name should be given. All letters should be fully prepaid, and a return address should be given in the upper left-hand corner.

Had Reason For Choice

English Boy Knew Why He Wanted To Understand German

David Stevenson, 15, is the son of W. H. Stevenson—who was editor of the London Daily Herald and now is with the British Ministry of Information. David has been going to school at Charter House, and recently matriculated at Oxford. When the exam results were published, his father discovered that the boy had won honors, in the language test he had selected—German. The boy confessed that he had been studying German, privately, and without any tutoring. "We've lived in France and you speak French fluently," the senior Stevenson reminded him. "You also can speak Spanish and Italian. Why did you pick the German language?" "Because by the time I'm 18," young David explained, "there will be an army of occupation in Germany—and I mean to be with it!"—New York Post.

Getting Out Of France

Youths Of Military Age Constantly Escaping To Join De Gaulle

Janet Flanner, writing in The New Yorker, says: "In an effort to channelize the energy behind French resistance into positive action, the Free French have selected, as their recruiting slogan, 'We have nothing but our bare breasts. Let us not stay home and merely try to stir up trouble. Let us flee and join General de Gaulle.' This flight of youth out of Gaul is a mixture of patriotism, nomadism, and desperation in the face of a barren future and the Nazi propaganda set out to snare the young in both occupied and Unoccupied France in their schools, in Youth Camps, and in official youth magazines. Not only French boys but French girls are fleeing. French consulates in Spain and Portugal are swamped by these adolescents; in Lisbon recently a hundred French boys and girls suddenly appeared in a group on the streets. As males of military age—from 20 to 48—are forbidden to leave any part of France, getting over the frontier is a ticklish job. In Paris, a French reserve officer and his wife were caught and imprisoned after they had aided nine hundred and sixty-five French youths to escape to England. From the Unoccupied Zone there is a regular underground railway route for enlistment in the de Gaulle forces, via North Africa. To escape from the Occupied Zone, most of the young fellows at first used Breton fishing boats. To thwart this, the Germans sent Nazis guards out on the schooner when the Bretons went to fish, but the Bretons overpowered the guards and delivered Nazis, fresh fish, and the de Gaulleists all together at English ports. Now the Breton fishing boats are forbidden to go to sea at all; as fish provide Brittany's principal diet and the principal income for peasants on its coasts, this is a great hardship.

Forced Labor

Germans Drag Men In Occupied Polish Territory

It is no secret that the Germans are continually seizing men throughout German-occupied Poland for forced labor, either in factories or on farms, in Germany. A recent report of an account given by an eye-witness received through a reliable source which cannot be directly quoted, adds significance to this slave-practice.

Falling to obtain "voluntary" workers in sufficient numbers from among the Poles, the Germans have ruthlessly continued, sometimes on an enlarged scale, with their "batches" or manhunts. Whenever such a raid takes place, the entire population is terrified, street cars are vacated by the passengers, and men rush either to a friend's or to any available apartment, in order to conceal themselves. Others seek safety on roof tops or in cellars.

In some areas where the Jews have not been confined to separate quarters, the wisest Poles wear the white armband with a blue star of Zion, the sign of the Jew. They know quite well, that Jews are not deported to Germany for forced labor.

Pin Shortage In London

Recent Dispatch Says They Are Now Almost Unobtainable

Anything which sheds a momentary gleam of humor as relief from the tragedy of war is welcome. Such is the recent dispatch from London telling of the frantic searching for pins by Saville Row tailors. They are said to be delving between the cracks of their floor boards, where pins may have fallen in better days, for the little implements to hold suits together while they are being fitted in British forms. Pins are currently unobtainable in London.

Women For War Work Will Be Enlisted

Several Thousand Women Volunteers Will Be Enlisted Within The Next Few Months To Serve As Full-time Auxiliaries In The Armed Forces, War Services Minister Thompson announced at a press conference.

The women volunteers will form a pool from which women's auxiliary corps in the army, navy and air force will be supplied by personnel are required.

Applications for entry to the women's corps will be received by the War Services Department and the National Defence Department will organize the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

National Defence officials estimated that from 2,000 to 3,000 women can be absorbed into this corps in the next six months.

Mr. Thorson asked that women withhold their applications to join until the necessary regulations have been worked out. He said that suitable recruits would be taken even if they were not members of voluntary women's organizations which have undertaken training in Canada. The plan has no connection with recruiting now being done in Canada for women's services in the United Kingdom.

The women will be engaged as drivers of light motor vehicles, as cooks and waitresses in hospitals and messes, as canteen helpers, store women, telephone operators, messengers and clerical workers.

They will be uniformed and will be required to enroll on the same basis as soldiers. Their pay will be "somewhat lower than that of soldiers."

Mr. Thorson said the present call was for service in Canada, but both ministers agreed service overseas on a voluntary basis would be considered if the demand arose.

Col. Ralston said enrolment would be gradual as accommodation at camps would have to be constructed or billeting space obtained. The corps will have its own offices.

Women Carpenters

Are Going To Repair And Rebuild Homes In Croydon

Corps of women carpenters and joiners, most of whom had to be taught how to hold a hammer, has been set to the task of repairing and rebuilding bomb-blasted homes in Croydon.

Most of the women, who get 22 cents an hour now and will get 35 cents an hour after six months, are able to hit a nail with fair accuracy after a few hours at the shop and have been taught to saw a fairly straight line.

"We expect a big expansion of women carpenters," said C. H. Walker, superintendent of reconstruction in Croydon, "and we expect them to continue after the war."

The feminine right to primp has been recognized on this job. The workers get an extra 22 cents a week for soap and towels.

This letter, used by a bill collecting agency, is said to have worked wonders: "Dear Sir, Please send us the name of a good lawyer in your city. We may have to sue you."

The man who grows about his wife's cooking three times a day will eat any old thing with relish when he is camping out for a week with a stag party.

With 90% per cent. of organized labor in Britain voting for a war to the finish with no negotiated peace, the spirit of the British people is unmistakable. 2419

Australia Takes Action

War Industry Strikes And Lockouts Outlawed For Duration

Strikes and lockouts in war industries have been outlawed in Australia "for the duration." The Prime Minister threatened to use the emergency powers given him last year to send "disloyalists responsible for such stoppages" to a concentration camp. At the same time he warned uncooperative employers that he would not hesitate to take over their plants.

With the exception of New Zealand, Australia has proportionately the strongest Labor party in the British Commonwealth of Nations. Thirty-six of the 74 seats in its House of Representatives are occupied by Laborites. Yet that has not prevented Australia from banning strikes and other stoppages of work, which would interfere with its all-out effort.
